

How do I receive Mass over the Internet?

Many churches are offering Internet mass. Basically, a webcam in their church delivers the broadcast to a website and all you have to do is go to the website using your favourite web browser (eg Chrome) and press the start button.

It's no more difficult than making a Skype call or playing a YouTube video.

Most sites also have a page with a schedule of their mass times, which tells you also which ones are being broadcast. In addition to Olivia's home parish, here are a couple you might like to try.

Church Services TV provides broadcasting services to churches and from their website, you can receive Mass from several churches in England, Ireland or Scotland.

<https://www.churchservices.tv/churches/>

If you select 'England' and then 'Surrey' from their menus, you will see St. Dunstan's in Woking, where Peter Andrews is parish priest.

A little further afield, there is Eternal Word TV Network (EWTN), which claims to be the largest broadcaster of church services in the world.

<https://www.ewtn.com/tv>

Good Luck